

CAN'T FIX DATE OF ADJOURNMENT FOR THE SENATE

Two Appropriation Bills Now Due From the House.

NOTHING DEFINITE SO FAR

Special Effort Would Possibly Make Upper House Finish Next Week.

The Senate Republican steering committee met this forenoon at the committee room of Senator Allison for its first session in the capacity of sifting committee of the National Legislature, to begin shaping affairs for the ending of the session.

The committee consists of Senator Allison, chairman, who was not able to be present on account of illness; Senators Hale, Spooner, Aldrich, Cullom, Lodge, Elkins, Keen, Perkins, Beveridge, and Clarke of Wyoming.

After a long discussion of the legislative situation the committee agreed that it is impossible at present definitely to fix an adjournment date. Two of the appropriation bills have not yet come to the Senate from the House and this fact together with the uncertainty about the meat inspection legislation and the disposition of the conference report on the rate bill makes it impossible accurately to estimate the time necessary for concluding the business of the session.

It is stated that the business of the Senate is in excellent condition, and that with a special effort it would probably be possible for that body to adjourn the latter part of next week. The steering committee, however, did not attempt to fix any date.

No Action on Smoot This Session.

With the consent of Senators Burrows and Dubois, it was agreed by the managers that the Smoot case shall go over until next session. It was pointed out that it will be utterly impossible to take a vote on the case except after a long discussion, and the anti-Smoot leaders were finally induced to withdraw their insistence on the consideration at this session.

The steering committee decided, however, that a vote must be taken at this session on the Panama canal measure, because if this should be denied the stevedores rider to the sundry bill might be offered, providing for a sea-level canal. As it is, the Senate will probably pass the bill providing for a sea-level canal, and it will go over to the next session for the consideration of the House.

Meat Inspection Bill May Fail.

The possibility that meat inspection legislation may yet fail, so far as this session is concerned, was indicated by the attitude of the managers after their meeting. It was stated that if the inspection bill passes the House by an emphatic vote, and in a form which seems generally satisfactory to the interests involved, it will be given a chance for a vote in the Senate.

Will Dispose of Rate Bill.

The railroad rate and Statehood conference reports will, of course, be disposed of, but the sundry bill will not reach the Senate before the close of this week at the best. It is a lengthy and important measure, and the Senate committee is already working on it with the utmost expedition it will require considerable time next week. The general deficiency bill will be given to the Senate, and this adds another element of uncertainty.

District Matters Before the Senate

The Senate Committee on the District of Columbia will meet tomorrow, probably for the last time this session. The committee has cleared its calendar of practically all important matters except some House bills that it has received this week. It also has on its table the bill for the granting to the city railway companies the right to extend their tracks to the new Union passenger station. This is the bill which was reported to the Senate some time ago with an important taxation provision attached to it, providing that the street railway companies should pay hereafter in addition to taxes on their property, 12 per cent of their net earnings. Opposition to this provision was so strong that the measure was sent back to the committee. It will probably come up tomorrow, shorn of the taxation provision.

Senate Discusses Federal Charter Grant

The House bill to grant a Federal charter to the Lake Erie and Ohio Railroad Canal Company was taken up in the Senate early this afternoon following a discussion which occupied a considerable part of yesterday afternoon's proceedings. The bill provides for the concession by a company chartered by Pittsburgh interests of a twelve-foot waterway connecting Lake Erie with the Ohio and Pittsburgh.

May Adjourn on 22d, Says Colonel Hepburn

"Col. Pete" Hepburn, chairman of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, had a little chat with the President this morning about Panama Canal problems. When he emerged from the executive office, he was just a little bit reticent about what had passed between the President and himself.

"When do you expect to adjourn?" Colonel Hepburn was asked.

"Well," he replied, "a man told me yesterday evening that the Oracle of the Senate had just told him that we would quit a week from next Friday, the 22d. I asked him 'Which Oracle?' and he replied, 'A gentleman from Rhode Island.' I don't see why we could do it before I heard that, but now that I am more fully informed on the situation, I'm willing to admit that we could not get through by the date mentioned."

ENGLISHMEN NOW CLOTHED ON YEARLY CONTRACT PLAN

London Tailors Agree to Keep a Man Well Dressed for a Fixed Sum Each Twelve-Month.

LONDON, June 12.—Clothing by contract is the latest worry-saving idea. Englishmen may now be supplied with suits, hats, gloves and hosiery for a fixed annual payment, in installments if desired.

A West End clothiers' company offers to contract for keeping a man well dressed for $100 a year. This may sound absurdly small to a New York man, but clothing is very much cheaper in London than on the other side. The supply includes one evening suit, one frock coat suit, one cutaway coat suit, one sack suit, one flannel suit and two overcoats.

For a fixed quarterly payment a Manchester firm keeps its customers supplied with shirts, underwear, collars, neckwear, gloves and hats, with four suits and two overcoats per annum.

DAUGHTER IS HELD FOR FATHER'S DEATH

Mental Condition of Woman Makes Mystery Unsolvable.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Virtually a prisoner today in the Court of Carnations, the beautiful country place near New Canaan, Conn., which she owns and where she reigns as mistress of a retinue of servants, Miss Giles Gamble McLenahan awaits with seeming indifference the legal processes which must result from her aged father's dying charge that she had injured him "in one of her spells."

William McLenahan, the father, was a wealthy shoe manufacturer of Manhattan. He died last Saturday at the Court of Carnations, under circumstances which may never be explained fully.

Miss McLenahan holds the key to the mystery, but her mental condition is said to be such as to preclude the hope that she can, or will, tell what occurred.

The servants relate that at midnight they were awakened by the angry screams of the young woman and the sounds of a struggle in the lower part of the house. They had heard a heavy fall and the screaming ceased only to venture to leave their rooms and peer down over the banisters. The old man lay moaning upon the floor. His daughter had disappeared.

By the death of her father Miss McLenahan inherits an estate estimated conservatively at $200,000. She was the model husband's darling.

MODEL HUSBAND SAVED FROM THE PENITENTIARY

CHICAGO, June 12.—Insomnia and the fact that he has lived the life of a model husband saved Edmund A. Tillman from the penitentiary before Judge Landis in the United States district court.

He confessed to having stolen $1,620 from the Government while acting as superintendent of a postal station at Cheltenham, where he conducted a drug store. His friends made good the shortage and told the court Tillman has appeared before the court.

Many of Tillman's friends testified that he apparently had been mentally affected by insomnia for the last three years. Judge Landis continued the case and told Tillman to go home and do his best to lead a different life.

SHOT ON WEDDING EVE BY UNKNOWN ASSAILANT

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 12.—On the eve of his marriage to Miss Abby Cunningham, one of the best known young women of this town, Frank Rodocker, an official of the Novelty Glass Company, was fatally injured at the Pennsylvania railroad station by an unknown Italian, who had mistaken Rodocker for another man.

His assailant first split Rodocker's head open with an ax and then fired three shots into his back. The Italian was pursued by a mob, but made good his escape. Rodocker is dying at the hospital.

HOME-COMING IN "OLD KENTUCKY"

Gala Week Scheduled for Natives of the Blue Grass State.

Practically the entire Kentucky Congressional delegation has deserted the National Capital to go to Louisville for "home-coming" week, which will last from today to June 17.

It is estimated that at least 50,000 native Kentuckians, now residents of other States and countries, will be in Louisville for the festivities.

Today is "Welcome Day." Henry Watterson will deliver the address of welcome and former Governor David R. Francis, of Missouri, will respond. This afternoon there will be a floral parade and at night a spectacular pageant. Tomorrow will be Foster Day, when the statue of Foster, author of "My Old Kentucky Home," will be unveiled. Friday will be Daniel Boone Day, Saturday Greater Kentucky Day, and Sunday "Until We Meet Again."

MARINE BAND CONCERT PROGRAM AT BARRACKS

The following program has been arranged by Lieutenant Santelmann for the Marine Band concert at the barracks at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon:

March, "Mussini"; Carl; overture, "Poet and Peasant"; Supper; intermezzo, "Loan du Bal"; Gallet; cornet solo, "Quint de l'Amo"; Sitta (Second Leader Walter F. Smith); waltz, "Am-Schoenen Rhein Gedenk ich Dein"; Keler-Bela; grand selection, "Mignon"; Thomas; descriptive, "A Musical Scene"; Bucchossi; "The Star-Spangled Banner."

GRADUATES DENY GIRLS 30 CENTS FOR PICNIC

CHICAGO, June 12.—For the first time in thirty-five years the senior picnic at Northwestern University will not be given because the men of the class refuse to pay the assessment of 30 cents each, after an ineffectual attempt to have the levy made from the fund in the class treasury, which was contributed mainly by the girls in the class.

There are eighty girls in the class and fifty boys, and the money was contributed in this proportion.

The picnic committee figured that, after allowing for contributions of cake and lemonade, which the girls proposed to make, the picnic would cost $15, or 30 cents for each man.

At the class meeting the boys told the girls they could not take them on the picnic unless the expenses were paid from the class treasury. The girls were indignant.

BARRYMORE GRAHAM ENGAGEMENT BROKEN

LONDON, June 12.—The announcement was made today that the engagement of Ethel Barrymore, the well-known American actress, and Capt. Harry Graham, of the English army, has been broken.

NO CLUE TO THE BOY THAT WAS SPIRITED AWAY

store and appeared first there last week. Yesterday afternoon he was again met by James Lenahan, a fourteen-year-old messenger boy, at Broad and Jefferson streets. Giving the boy the note, he told him to take it at once to the principal of the school at Seventeenth and Jefferson streets, and to be sure to bring the boy back with him.

Miss Ring, the principal, suspected nothing, and allowed her pupil to go away with the messenger boy.

About 4:30, after the lad was due home, the parents of the child began to get anxious, but were not alarmed, as they thought that possibly the little fellow might have stopped to play with some of his schoolmates. Mr. and Mrs. Muth had no suspicion of anything wrong until the principal of the school came in to inquire for the boy's mother.

"The boy's mother is not sick," said Mr. Muth. "Why do you ask?"

Father Starts Chase.

When the father heard of the strange message and the disappearance of the boy, he was frantic. Immediately he notified the police of the Twenty-third Street station house, which was the first information they had received of the disappearance, and, summoning some of the neighbors who had seen the strange man loitering about the neighborhood, he immediately started for Broad Street station, in hopes that he might overtake the man before he had left town with his son. But they found no trace.

Grief of the father and mother was pitiful. Last evening they appeared as if they were completely stunned by the blow and their grief was still further intensified by a telephone message, which came about 6 o'clock.

Queer Phone Message.

"Don't worry about Fred," the message said. "He is in our yard playing and will be home right away."

"Send him home right away," screamed the mother in her joy at thinking her boy was found. "Where is he? I'll send for him."

But the receiver at the end of the wire was hung up, and the informant was gone.

Efforts to trace the sender of the message were vain, and that was the last that has been heard from the little fellow.

He was a child of more than ordinary intelligence and beauty and passionately devoted to his mother and father. Last summer, when he was sent into the country for a week, he became hysterical the first night, and had to be brought back to the loving care of his mother the next day.

Why he should have left with the strange man without making an outcry could not be imagined unless it was because of the thought of his mother's mother drove out all thought of danger.

TRIED IT BEFORE.

The first seen of the man who carried the boy away was last Thursday, when he accosted Raymond Hager, who lives with his sister, Mrs. Van Vleet, at 111 Montgomery avenue.

"Do you know Fred Muth?" the strange man said.

"Yes, I know him," was the lad's reply.

"Well, here's 40 cents," giving the boy some money. "You bring him to Thirtieth and Columbia tomorrow when school is out, and I will take you both out to the ball game."

"Don't you tell anyone I am going to take you, or your mother won't let you come. Here's some candy for you, little man. Run on now and be here tomorrow without fail."

After making of making immediate arrangements with Fred for the ball game the following day, Raymond went right home and told his sister, who has been a mother to him ever since he was one year old.

"Where did you get all that money?" his sister said.

"A man gave it to me to take Fred Muth to the ball game with tomorrow, and he told me not to tell anyone about it, as he was afraid if I told you would not let me go."

Warned the Parents.

When Mrs. Van Vleet heard this her fears were at once aroused, and, as she thought over the conversation, she became so alarmed that she at once put on her wraps and went to see Mr. and Mrs. Muth and tell them her suspicions. They did not take the matter as seriously as

MOTHER MAY KNOW WHO KILLED WOMAN

Police Convinced Mrs. Stenton Has Some Knowledge of Kinnam Murder.

NEW YORK, June 12.—The theory has been strengthened in police circles that Mrs. Louisa Stenton, mother of Mrs. Alice C. D. Kinnam, knows much more about the murder of the latter than she has yet told. When the murder was committed this woman was described as a feeble, weak-minded old person, weak and tottering. The police who have watched over her now say that she is a woman of strength—unusual for one of her age.

That she is alert she proved beyond all doubt last night, when, by a clever ruse, she succeeded in temporarily riding herself of the policeman who had been watching her since the murder. Under the pretext that it was too warm in the house, she coaxed the watcher onto the front stoop, and then shut and locked the door, so that he could not get back into the house.

Acting Captain Price, in charge of the Bronx detective bureau, is now to admit today that Mrs. Kinnam was murdered by some one well known to her and her mother.

Like Ross Mystery.

Last night the entire detective force of the city was working on the mystery. It was feared it might rival the famous Charles Ross case, the only difference being that this one was more up-to-date, the innocent messenger boy was made the instrument in the supposed abduction.

NINTH ANNUAL OUTING OF KISMET COUNCIL.

Kismet Council, Royal Arcanum, held its ninth annual excursion yesterday. Hundreds of pleasure seekers boarded the steamer yesterday morning and spent the day at River View, returning at night. The outing was one of the most successful ever given under the auspices of the council.

A feature of the program of entertainment for the day was the baseball game between the officers and members of the council. Each side fought bravely to achieve the victory which means much on these annual gatherings, but the scorers had not made public the final result.

Last night hundreds of people went down on the boat and joined the crowds who had gone early in the day. The excursion was under the management of a committee, consisting of A. E. Cook, Max Abel, L. S. Childs, L. L. Marcorer, H. G. Brinkley, H. E. Bevens, G. W. Slater, R. Cook, C. K. Kalstrom, G. H. Griffith, and J. Cotterell.

WEATHER AGAINST AIRSHIP FLIGHT

Thousands Who Craned Necks Were Disappointed.

ASCENT SOON IS CERTAIN

Aeronaut Beachey Is Only Waiting for Favorable Conditions to Sail Over Washington.

Lincoln Beachey, the aeronaut who, with Roy Knabenshue, is to make flights in the Knabenshue airship, No. 2, from Luna Park, took one glance at the sullen sky this morning and then shook his head, as he turned to Manager George E. Gill and remarked:

"Not this morning, thank you."

Beachey announced, however, that he would positively make a flight at the very first opportunity, the only condition being a reasonably still air. Thousands visited the park last night, in connection with the outing of the Alexandria Elks and the Women's Rotary Union of the Government Printing Office, and to see the big airship, which was on exhibition in the aerodrome to the south of the hippodrome stage.

Yesterday afternoon people on Pennsylvania avenue, as far west as the White House, were on the lookout for the airship, but the wind interfered, and there was no flight. It was a common sight all along the Avenue to see people in the street cars with their heads out, looking toward the sky. Near the Capitol a touring car with its load of passengers, all looking up, expectedly awaited the appearance of the flying machine.

Beachey declares that he will make a flight at the very first opportunity, the only condition being a fairly still atmosphere. He made twenty-five successful flights at the Lewis and Clark Exposition, and is not a bit afraid of being unable to fill his contract here to the letter.

INCREASE FOR FIREMEN URGED BY MACFARLAND

Conferring with Senator Gallinger, chairman of the District Senate Committee and acting chairman of the subcommittee of the District Appropriations Committee, District Commissioner MacFarland today urged that prompt action be taken on the "Commissioners' bill," which has already passed the House, to increase the pay of members of the District Fire Department, so as to get the appropriation for the next fiscal year at the increased rates.

Everything possible will be done to bring about that result, the Commissioner stated, as in the case of the policemen and the school teachers.

NO MORE CANTEENS IN SOLDIERS' HOMES

After a lively debate the House yesterday afternoon took action forfidding the sale of any intoxicating liquors in the soldiers' homes of the United States.

It came when Mr. Bowersock of Kansas offered an amendment to the sundry bill appropriating money, providing that no appropriation in the bill shall go to any soldiers' home in which a canteen is maintained. Chairman Taft, of the Committee on Appropriations, objected to the amendment on a point of order, but Mr. Watson, then in the chair, held the amendment to be valid, and it was voted into the bill by a vote of 106 to 61.

Representatives Threlk, Gardner, and Littlefield supported the amendment.

KILLED GIRL FIRST, THEN SHOT HIMSELF

Rejected Love Commits Horrible Double Crime on the Streets.

TROY, N. Y., June 12.—Angered because the girl he had known and loved since childhood refused to accept the affection he tried to shower upon her, John Carter last night shot and instantly killed Mamie Stanton and then killed himself.

Early last night Miss Stanton in company with her girl chum, Miss Nellie Karmagan, was walking on Wall street when Carter accosted them and pulling a revolver from his pocket fired at the girl, the bullet entering her skull. She fell lifeless to the sidewalk, but the crazed man meant to make sure of his crime, and standing over the body shot four more bullets into her head. Miss Stanton's companion fainted.

Carter ran into an alley and placing another revolver to his forehead fired, killing himself instantly.
